NEW ARM PATCH for Cameron Police force is displayed on sleeve of Patrolman John Brooks' uniform by Police Chief John Shearin. Wearing the American flag patch on uniforms has sharply reduced assaults on police officers in Macon, Ga., first city to introduce the patch. Chief Shearin said Cameron police are the first in Texas to wear the patch, which is inspired by those worn on the Astronauts' uniforms. Shearin said the flag is worn to remind citizens of the role police officers play in the defense of their homes and life.

RELEASE OF GRAZELANDS REQUESTED

Sun-baked Central Texas continue a thermometer watch as Cameron residents marked the July calendar with 20 of the first 29 days registering 100 plus temperatures, a record for Cameron. On July 21 of an inch shower on July 15 brought the only brief relief from searing skies.

Downtown watchers Tuesday binned in dismay as the thermometer at a local bank registered 114 degrees at 3 p.m. The unofficial reading could rival those of Presidio, one of the nation's hottest spots reporting to weather officials.

Agriculture interests were assessing the effect of heat and drought with predicted losses in both grain and cotton crops.

The Milam County Disaster Committee has requested permission for temporary grazing and haying on land retired by USDA programs. Ted Ford, chairman of the committee, said no word had been received on the application at mid week.

County Agent J. D. Moore said a rural water shortage had been overtaken because of the large number of farm ponds built for water storage in recent years.

July temperatures brought comparisons with previous Julys and held the lead in duration of hot days.

1959 - Only one day reached the 100 mark and that was on July 11. Rainfall for that month was 1.97.

1960 - Three hot days were recorded, July 27 and 29 reached 100 and July 30 was 103. Rainfall was 1.11.

1961 - A cool summer with no 100 degree days recorded. High for July was 97 degrees on July 8. Rainfall was 3.18.

1962 - Four 100 degree or more days were topped with a 102 reading on July 28. Rainfall was .03.

The mild July was followed by a blistering August when the official reading reached 107 on August 10 and August 12. City records show 18 days of 100 degree plus readings that month and .02 of an inch of rain.

1963 - Ten days of 100 plus temperatures were followed by 13 days of 100 plus readings in August and a high of 103 on August 21. No rain fell in July of that year.

1964 - July readings show 11 days of 100 plus temperatures with a high of 105 on July 25. Rainfall was .70.

1965 - Another cool July with a 96 degree high and 27 rainfall.

1966 - A high of 101 degrees followed seven days of 100 readings. Rainfall was 2.13.

1967 - Twelve days of 100 degree readings with the temperatures climbing to 103 on July 30 and 31. Rainfall was .78.

1968 - A 95 degree high and 62 degree low for the month with cooling rains that measured 2.26 during July.

1969 - A 95 degree high and 62 degree low for the month with cooling rains that measured 2.26 during July.

Cameron Schools Unitized . . .

Trustees Vote For Plan

A plan to completely "unitize" all of the Cameron Public School system was approved by School Board members Monday and will go into effect at the beginning of the 1969-70 school year.

Members voted 5-2 for the plan at a called meeting Monday evening, one day before the CISD's July 29 deadline for compliance with the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

The plan, except for a change in third grade placement, is the one recommended by a survey team from the civil rights division of Texas Education Agency. The team presented the plan at a regular board meeting July 10.

Vote came after a discussion of the plan, which includes changing O. J. Thomas Sixth to a junior high school for sixth, seventh, and eighth grades.

The decision centered on educational advantages that will be gained by full use of all Cameron school buildings.

Under the 1963-69 alignment five classrooms were empty in the O. J. Thomas building while overcrowded conditions existed in Yoe High and Ada Henderson Schools.

Some of the worst overcrowding experienced last year was in Ada Henderson cafeteria and in the gymnasium. The new arrangement of grades will result in approximately 392 students at Ada Henderson, a difference of 111 from last year's 506 students.

Grade placements under the plan will be:

Ben Milam - five sections of first grade and four sections of second grade.

Ada Henderson - four sections of third grade, five sections fourth grade, five sections fifth grade. Three extra classrooms in Ada Henderson can be used for a high school math department.

Facilities at the junior high school include 13 classrooms, library, homemaking department, science lab, gymnasium, auditorium combination, and a cafeteria. The social science lab for seventh grade will be moved to the junior high building.

Supt. D. R. Dodson pointed out that the plan will give music and art for grades 2-5 and full time physical education teachers for junior high boys and girls. Also, by departmentalizing grades 3, 4, and 5 for reading and math, some ability grouping will be possible.

If the school had continued under the 1963-69 alignment, classrooms at Ben Milam and Ada Henderson would have been more crowded and "split sections" would have been necessary for some grades, Dodson said.

For instance, fourth grade class totals would have gone over the 35 students allowed under State education laws. Under the new plan classes will have 28 or 29 students to each of the five sections. Dodson said fourth grade classes were most crowded last year.

The name "Cameron Junior High" was unanimously agreed upon for the former O. J. Thomas School.

A problem of class pictures displayed in the school halls was resolved by board approval of displaying at Yoe High School the picture of 1969 YHS graduating class. All others will be placed in storage, but athletic trophies will all be displayed in cases.

In other business the board accepted resignations from Mrs. Ruth Ann Williamson and John H. McLerran.

Free Tests Offered In Cameron Sunday

To Detect Diabetes

A Diabetes Detection Center will be open in Cameron Sunday afternoon to test area residents for diabetes.

The Center will be open for the free tests from 1:30 until 5:30 p.m. at Methodist Fellowship Hall and is sponsored by Cameron Noon Lions Club. Everyone in the Cameron and Milam County area is invited to come.

Bernay Dusek, chairman of the Diabetes Detection committee, said the testing program is aimed at finding "hidden diabetics," people who may have the disease and not know it.

Persons especially urged to come for the quick test, which uses a drop of fingertip blood, are those over 40, overweight persons, relatives of known diabetics, and mothers whose babies weighed more than nine pounds at birth.

The Center will be staffed by professional and volunteer personnel, in cooperation with the Milam County Medical Society.

Lions committee chairman for the Center are: Ed Schiller, personnel; J. E. Lafferty, publicity; Jim Bledsoe, equipment; Dr. S. H. Richardson, professional liaison; and Dr. C. G. Swift, county health officer.

Library Friends Drive Underway

Early response to Friends of the Cameron Public Library membership drive spurred hope that the 1969-70 year would show the largest support since the organization started in 1966.

Mrs. W. C. Wallace, chairman of the membership drive, said almost $100 for individual memberships had been received in the mail before the drive officially opened. Letters were mailed this week to those who have shown interest in the library in the past.

Mrs. Wallace said she also said that an attempt would be made to contact individuals by phone during the next few weeks.

Friends of the Library enjoy a well-rounded program of art, music and literary reviews during the winter months. The program variety in the past has included book reviews by noted speakers, art collections, programs on philosophy, economics, and music, as well as antique shows and fashion shows.

In addition to the programs, Friends of the Library provides some of the extras in library service. They are responsible for the displays of local as well as state art, they have added a children's corner with scaled to size furniture, and membership dues pay for Tuesday and Thursday evening library hours.

Mrs. Jack Tumlison, incoming president, said 6 types of membership are available again this year: Student membership, $1; Individual, $5; Sustaining (single or couple), $10; Supporting (single or couple), $15; Honorary (single or couple), $25; and Club membership, $10 or more.

Mrs. Wallace said the deadline for receiving memberships would be extended past Sunday to allow time to contact those who are away on vacation.

Dues may be mailed to Mrs. Wallace, P. O. Box 268, Cameron.

'Low Priority Dam' . . .

Land Group Hears Boswell

Howard Boswell, executive director of Texas Water Development Board, Friday night assured members and guests of the Bell-Milam Land and Water Rights Association that a proposed Cameron Reservoir was a "low priority dam."

Introduced by Gene Linn, of Rogers, Boswell noted the Texas Water Development Board has been empowered to develop control of ground surface water to meet the needs of Texas for the next 50 years.

Boswell and later, Col. Walter J. Wells, general manager of Brazos River Authority, spoke before a group of landowner members of the Association, State Senator Murray Watson, State Rep. Dan Kubiak, several area leaders and press. The group ate dinner at the Texan following a tour of Little River farms and ranches in Bell and Milam Counties.

Boswell, formerly of Temple,

ONE - "It is not proposed to divert water out of Brazos Basin into any canal system."

TWO - "It isn't expected that the Water Development Board will build all the proposed dams."

The Board would work through existing agencies, such as political subdivisions like counties, cities and work with agencies like Brazos River Authority which commits to selling water accumulated in reservoirs.

THREE - "The proposed Cameron Reservoir is thought of as a last chance water supply" (for the Brazos River Basin). An earthen dam, unlike the structures built by Corps of Engineers.

FOUR - "The Board will study what costs and amounts of water are needed. No decision to build any dam in the area until needed."

The proposed reservoir was first announced in 1966 and would cover, as originally proposed, 45,000 acres of Little River bottomland about five miles south of Cameron upstream on Little and San Gabriel River and Brushy Creek.

It is designated a water supply project. Boswell emphasized the Texas Water Development Board, as some landowners apparently believed, has no power to take land by eminent domain. He said the Legislature would have to enact legislation enabling such activity.

He said the reservoir, one of 67 under a 50-year Texas Water Plan, was considered "with the idea of building sometime after 1990 and perhaps not before 2020."

Col. Wells noted Brazos River Authority's support for Amendment which would allow the Legislature to enact laws for state bonds up to $3.5 billion, thus financing a "flexible" water plan.

He emphasized that any Cameron Reservoir water costs, as detailed in the Land Association's See LAND Page 4

TSA Offers Talk On Drunk Driver Breath Test Law

A free illustrated talk explaining the new Texas law which makes chemical breath tests mandatory for drunk driving suspects is now available from the Texas Safety Association.

Entitled "So, What Do We Do Now?", the talk points out that for the past ten years, 68 percent of persons killed in one-car accidents were drunk when they died, as were 43 percent of those killed in two-car accidents. It goes on to estimate that enforcement of the new law can lower those percentages considerably, saving as many as 500 lives a year.

Starting September 1, Texas drivers suspected of driving while intoxicated must take a test to determine the alcohol content of their blood. If they refuse the test, they can lose their driver's license.

"So, What Do We Do Now?" describes each step in the administering of the test to a suspect. The talk is designed to give Texans a better understanding of the "breath test" law and the procedures which will be followed in enforcing it.

Illustrated with 33 color slides, the talk is available at no charge to adult groups throughout the state. Civic and service organizations wishing to see the presentation are urged to contact the Texas Safety Association, 1623 South Lamar Boulevard, Austin, Texas 78704. Telephone Area Code 512, 444-6551.

Hornung came to bat again and with bases loaded got a double knocking in Goeke. Smithman and Kopriva. Zarosky came up with a single to bring in the tying run.

In the 7th, pitcher Jeff Smithman struck the first batter out, threw a second out at first base and walked the third batter. He was nailed at second while trying to steal on a throw from catcher Randy Sapp to Kopriva. When the Yanks came to bat Sanchez got a base hit on a bunt, moved to scoring position on 3rd and scored the winning run on a hit by Goeke.

VA Advises Change In Vets Insurance

Jack Coker, manager of the Veterans Administration Regional Office in Waco, said today that more than half of the 233,000 Texas veterans who hold $1,877,153,000 worth of government life insurance have not yet converted these policies from term to a permanent plan.

In 1963, he pointed out, Texas veterans paid $29,963,000 in premiums to keep both term and permanent government policies in force.

World War II and Korean Conflict veterans hold most of the term policies, Coker said. Now at an average age of 49.7 years, World War II veterans in Texas who have not converted their insurance will soon find their National Service Life Insurance premiums going up as a result of advancing age.

Permanent insurance costs more to begin with, but the premium rates for permanent insurance never go up. Permanent policies also have loan, cash-surrender, paid-up and extended insurance values, whereas term policies do not.

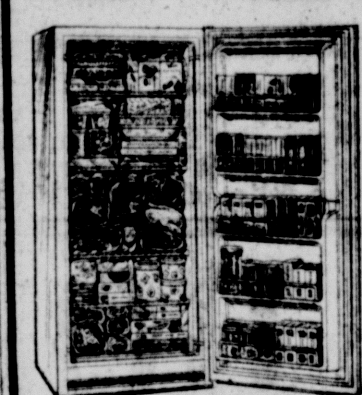

Veterans can obtain detailed information about the various government life insurance permanent plans from their nearest VA office, Coker said.

Free Campground Guide Available

AUSTIN

Directions to some 350 public campgrounds in Texas are provided in a new publication released today by the Texas Highway Department.

The new Texas Public Campground Guide gives information about sites which range from primitive to elaborately modern. Directions are provided to undeveloped gulf beaches, and to sites with paved parking areas, electricity and running water. There are even directions to a site one can't get to — by car, that is. It's a fisherman's camping area on a Gulf coast island.

The guide was published to serve the growing popularity of camping and recreational vehicles. It lists only those campgrounds which are operated by tax-support agencies — federal, state, county, city and such organizations as river authorities. Private commercial facilities are not included, that information usually being available in commercial tour and camping directories.

The cooperation of many state, federal and local authorities was required to compile this first comprehensive guide to Texas public campgrounds. Cooperating agencies included the Extension Service to Texas A&M University, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, U. S. Corps of Engineers, National Park Service, National Forest Service, chambers of commerce, city and county officials, and others.

Free copies of the new Texas Public Campground Guide are available at Highway Department tourist bureaus and district offices, or by mail from the Texas Highway Department, Travel and Information Division, P.O. Box 5064, Austin 78703.

brochure, indicated it would be hard to sell water at competitive costs if water from other reservoirs is cheaper and available.

And a dam wouldn't be built unless the water it stores can be utilized, Wells said.

Wells urged support for Amendment 2.

If approved, the Water Board would begin studies on construction of some of the proposed 67 dams, starting in East Texas.

Linn, a Land Association director, read through the brochure which listed the purposes of the organization and showed the loss of about $4.58 millions in crops, pecans, grazing land annually. It showed a comparative study of sedimentation with Belton and Stillhouse Hollow showing about same sedimentation as Stillhouse, but about 40,000 less than Belton Reservoir.

Host for the meeting was Wilburn Beekhusen, president of Bell-Milam Land Association.

A number of directors and members of the Association attended the meeting and made the bus tour of the bottomland areas.

Linn presented Boswell resolutions opposing construction of the proposed reservoir from Buckholts, Thorndale and Rockdale School Districts, Milam County Commissioners Court, Central Soil District and said others would possibly come from Rogers City Council and Taylor Soil District.

Highway 79 To Be Widened At Gause

A public hearing to discuss construction of US Highway 79 from the Brazos River to the west limits of Gause is set for September 3 by the Texas Highway Department.

The proposed corridor route will pass through Gause with the present two lane highway widened to a four-lane urban section in Gause.

The hearing will be in Milam County Courthouse at 10 a.m.

BAPTISTS SET BIBLE SCHOOL

Vacation Bible School for First Baptist Church will be held August 4 through 14 from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m.

Plans for the vacation school include Bible study, hand crafts, and character studies for ages 3 through 13.

Eighteen young volunteer workers are winding up their final week as helpers in Cameron Schools' Head Start program, which ends Friday.

"We couldn't have made it without them," Mrs. Gloria Perkins, director, said in praising the work of the volunteers. "There is no way to thank or repay these volunteers for the work they did in helping us," she added.

A limited number of aides are paid to work in the program as members of the Neighborhood Youth Corps, but the 18 volunteer helpers who put in a total of 2,410 hours are not paid.

Some of the young volunteers had worked in previous years' Head Start classes, but for the majority it was all new. An OEO workshop held in Temple before the classes began helped train the volunteers.

Volunteers Lighten Tasks For Head Start Program Workers

Miss Jane Burns, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Burns, is the Cameron Princess to the Austin Aqua Festival. The Yoe High graduate attends Christian College in Columbia, Missouri, where she is on the Year Book Staff. The Austin Aqua Festival is one of the ten largest festivals in the United States. The Coronation Ball, August 9, where the Princess will be presented, is the climax of ten days of activities in the Capitol City.

Bible School To Unite Youth Of 3 Churches

An ecumenical Bible School will unite Christian, Lutheran and Presbyterian youth in Cameron for a one-week study session beginning Monday, August 5. The Bible School will be from 8:30 to 11 a.m. Monday through Friday, August 8.

Over 100 young people are expected for the Bible School which is open to any child who wishes to attend. Teachers and workers from the First Christian Church, Abiding Saviour Lutheran Church and First Presbyterian Church have volunteered their time and a director from each church will oversee the general program.

Summer-long planning has gone into setting up the ecumenical effort for the Cameron churches. Study plans and guides from each participating church were combined for the lesson program. Related crafts and music will also be a major part of each morning session.

Children ages 4 through those who have completed the 4th grade in school meet in class rooms at the First Presbyterian Church. Young people in 5th through 8th grades will meet at the First Christian Church.

The Vacation Bible School next week will mark the first of its kind in Cameron. Separate summer study programs have been held by the Christian and Presbyterian Churches each summer. It will be the first Bible School for Abiding Saviour Lutheran Church which was founded just last year.

Mental Health

DOES LSD CAUSE MENTAL ILLNESS?

No drug has caused more controversy, with the possible exception of marijuana, than the strange compound known as LSD.

What do we know about it?

Here are some of the questions people frequently ask about this mysterious drug. The answers are factual, not precepts. The answers are based on current scientific knowledge.

What is LSD?

It is a powerful man-made chemical, lysergic acid diethylamide, generally called LSD. It was first developed in 1938 from chemicals found in ergot, a fungus that grows on rye — a common grain plant.

LSD is classed legally as a hallucinogen, a mind-affecting drug. It is noted mainly for producing strong, strange mental reactions in people. It causes striking distortions in their physical senses: what and how they see, touch, smell and hear.

Does LSD increase creativity?

Some users believe it does. But studies of paintings, writings, and other works done by drug users have failed to support this. In many cases, works done by people under LSD influence appeared noticeably poorer.

Is LSD dangerous?

Hospital and other reports warn of definite dangers: accidental deaths, panic, temporary but possibly recurring paranoia (suspicious fear), and the possibility of acute and even long-lasting mental illness.

How does the law view LSD?

Because LSD is a dangerous drug when not used for research under medical supervision, it is closely regulated by Federal laws. These call for strict penalties, imprisonment and fines, for illegal production, sale, or disposition of LSD and other similar drugs. State laws also provide stiff penalties, some for possession as well as use, sale or disposition.

What is the Institute doing about LSD?

Because we need to know more about this powerful drug, NIMH is supporting and encouraging research on a broad front to get full answers about its chemistry, pharmacology, animal and human effects, and whether it has any real medical or other value.

20,000 Miles A Day . . .

Alcoans Travel

By Robert K. Taylor

Rockdale Alcoans will drive approximately 20,000 miles today. Watch them arrive and depart from the plant each morning, afternoon and night and you will soon believe that America is truly a mobile society.

You will see them arrive in pickups, sedans, trucks, motorcycles, sports cars and once, a tractor was spotted on one of the parking lots.

The 1,477 employees arrive in car pools of two to six. Some ride alone while others bring a friend. They represent 55 cities, towns and communities within a 100-mile radius. For some the drive to and from the plant is only minutes, while for others it may mean three hours on the road each day.

The majority of Rockdale's employment roll is drawn from Rockdale, Cameron, Taylor, and Thorndale. Rockdale Alcoans number 463; Cameron has 150; Taylor, 131; and Thorndale, 105.

Eight towns supply more than 23 employees each. They are Caldwell, Calvert, Gause, Giddings, Hearne, Lexington, Milano, and Thrall.

Remaining employees drive from Austin, Bartlett, Bastrop, Ben Arnold, Brenham, Bryan, Euckholts, Burton, Burlington, Carmine, Chriesman, College Station, Coupland, Davilla, Deanville and Dime Box.

Also Elgin, Franklin, Georgetown, Granger, Gregory, Hallettsville, Holland, Hutto, LaGrange, Ledbetter, Lincoln, Lott, Manor, Martin, Maysfield, McDade, Minerva and Mumford.

They come from Paige, Rogers, Rozanky, Rosebud, Round Rock, Smithville, Somerville, Tanglewood and Temple.

Industrial Generating Company, which operates the mining area and power plant for Rockdale Works, also draws its employment from a large number of communities.

Outdoors In Texas

Vandals throughout the nation continue to be a roadblock against more open-recreation facilities which could be made available to those who want to enjoy the great outdoors.

From Washington the American Forestry Institute recently issued a report on this subject covering a survey of 254 company-owned forest areas.

In 60 of the areas they found signs destroyed in 58 trash and litter were dumped at unauthorized places. There were 44 thefts of company property; 36 improvement destructions; 31 forest fires started; 26 instances of killing and cutting trees; 1 gates destroyed; and many other illegal acts.

This destruction was on private property, where through a cooperative effort, the owners made the property available and even furnished facilities for recreation users.

Estimated cost of this vandalism was $436,000!

AFT's survey covered 65 million acres of land where public facilities were made available. Some at a slight charge. On this acreage there were 1,832 campsites and 2,315 picnic tables, all for use of the general public. Yet the public persisted in its destruction.

Amendment No. 4 would place rural water supply systems on the same tax basis as the municipally owned water supply systems. The Texas Association of Rural Water Corporations points out that both systems are non-profit organizations, owned by the customers. At present rural systems are subject to state, county, and school taxes.

Text Of Water Bond Amendment

Amendment No. 2-425 No. 2 (Granting the powers and flexibility of operation to the Texas Water Development Board necessary to develop sufficient water resources for present and future economic development of the state.)

This proposed amendment adds a new Section 42 to Article III of the Texas Constitution which is designed to grant to the Texas Water Development Board the powers and flexibility of operation necessary to develop sufficient water resources for present and future economic development of the state.

Specifically, the proposed new section:

1) broadens the powers of the Water Development Board, permitting the board to participate in the development of all types of water resources;

2) increases the constitutionally-authorized amount of the

for Development Bonds by an additional $3.5 billion, subject to the approval of a two-thirds majority of the legislature;

3) eliminates the present 4 percent interest rate ceiling on Water Development Bonds;

4) eliminates the 1982 termination date for the Water Development Fund, which is derived from the sale of Water Development Bonds;

5) extends the maturity schedule for Water Development Bonds from 40 to 50 years; and

6) authorizes the Texas Water Development Board under such conditions as the legislature may prescribe to receive loans and to contract with the United States, other states, foreign governments, and others for acquisition and development of water resources and facilities and to secure such contracts by the general credit of the state.

Amendments 8-9

Editor's note: Last in a series of analyses of nine proposed amendments to be voted on Tuesday, August 5. The analyses are prepared by Texas Legislative Council.

AMENDMENT No. 8 H.J.R. No. 50 (Authorizing the legislature to provide for additional loans to students at institutions of higher education under the Texas Opportunity Plan.)

The proposed amendment adds a new section 50b-1 to Article III of the Texas Constitution. The amendment gives the legislature power to authorize the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System, to issue and sell $200 million of additional general obligation bonds, the revenue from the sale of which is to be used to make loans to students who have been admitted to any institution of higher education in the state whether publicly or privately owned or operated, and including junior colleges.

The money received from the sale of the bonds is to be deposited in the Texas Opportunity Plan Fund, established by constitutional amendment in 1965 (Texas Constitution, Art. III, Sec. 50b) and implemented by the Hinson-Hazelwood College Student Loan Act. Every deserving and qualified student should be afforded the opportunity to have a college education. It should be emphasized that the passage of H.J.R. No. 50 will authorize only loans and does not authorize gifts or grants to students. All loans are repayable with interest charges set by the coordinating board, and of the 90 thousand loans made thus far, the 23 in default of payments constitute a percentage actually too small to calculate.

3. The single greatest natural resource in the State of Texas is its young people. Each year, thousands of high school graduates with college potential are deterred from continuing their education due to inadequate finances. Adoption of the proposed Amendment No. 8 would assure many of these students of the college education and training they deserve and would assure the State of Texas that future state development will be in the hands of those best qualified for service.

Against: 1. State loans to students take business from private enterprise. Banks, savings and loan institutions, and private charities have helped students finance their educations for years. The Texas Opportunity Plan Fund already has authorized $85 million, and any more loans would create administrative problems adversely affecting the repayment rate.

2. This amendment continues the practice of making loans to students enrolled in church-supported schools. This is merely a subterfuge.

3. Those able-bodied young people who are serious enough about wanting an education and who are willing to work can finance their own schooling. At a time when violence and disrespect for law and order are evident on our campuses, the state should encourage students to work and build for themselves rather than foster indolence through practically giveaway loans.

AMENDMENT No. 9 H.J.R. No. 8 (Providing for annual sessions of the Texas Legislature.) This proposed constitutional amendment to Article III, Section 5, of the Texas Constitution adds a new paragraph to provide for the holding of regular sessions in even-numbered years. Present provisions prescribe that regular sessions be held biennially in odd-numbered years. Thus the proposed amendment would institute annual sessions.

The amendment provides that regular sessions in odd-numbered years would retain the present split-session concept whereby the first 30-day period of the session is set aside for the introduction of bills and the consideration of appointments and emergency matters submitted by the governor, the second 30-day period is allocated to committee hearings, and the final 60-day period is used for action on bills and resolutions then pending. Section 5 also retains the present provision allowing either house to determine its order of business by an affirmative vote of four-fifths of its membership.

The proposed amendment provides that regular sessions held in even-numbered years shall not exceed 60 days in length and will be limited to legislation on the subjects of providing funds for the support of activities of the state government and emergency matters submitted by the Governor in uation of the Texas Opportunity Plan.

2. A college education in today's technical world is even more essential now than in 1965 when the Texas Opportunity Plan Fund was created by adoption of Article III, Section 50b, and the Hinson-Hazelwood College Student Loan Act. Every deserving and qualified student should be afforded the opportunity to have a college education. It should be emphasized that the passage of H.J.R. No. 50 will authorize only loans and does not authorize gifts or grants to students. All loans are repayable with interest charges set by the coordinating board, and of the 90 thousand loans made thus far, the 23 in default of payments constitute a percentage actually too small to calculate.

3. The single greatest natural resource in the State of Texas is its young people. Each year, thousands of high school graduates with college potential are deterred from continuing their education due to inadequate finances. Adoption of the proposed Amendment No. 8 would assure many of these students of the college education and training they deserve and would assure the State of Texas that future state development will be in the hands of those best qualified for service.

Against: 1. State loans to students take business from private enterprise. Banks, savings and loan institutions, and private charities have helped students finance their educations for years. At a time when violence and disrespect for law and order are evident on our campuses, the state should encourage students to work and build for themselves rather than foster indolence through practically giveaway loans.

AMENDMENT No. 9 H.J.R. No. 8 (Providing for annual sessions of the Texas Legislature.)

This proposed constitutional amendment to Article III, Section 5, of the Texas Constitution adds a new paragraph to provide for the holding of regular sessions in even-numbered years. Present provisions prescribe that regular sessions be held biennially in odd-numbered years. Thus the proposed amendment would institute annual sessions.

The amendment provides that regular sessions in odd-numbered years would retain the present split-session concept whereby the first 30-day period of the session is set aside for the introduction of bills and the consideration of appointments and emergency matters submitted by the governor, the second 30-day period is allocated to committee hearings, and the final 60-day period is used for action on bills and resolutions then pending. Section 5 also retains the present provision allowing either house to determine its order of business by an affirmative vote of four-fifths of its membership.

The proposed amendment provides that regular sessions held in even-numbered years shall not exceed 60 days in length and will be limited to legislation on the subjects of providing funds for the support of activities of the state government and emergency matters submitted by the Governor in messages to the Legislature.

The proposed amendment also provides that, commencing in 1971, the legislature, at each regular session, must appropriate funds for the support of activities of the state government for the succeeding fiscal year.

BACKGROUND Historically, Texas has continuously operated under the biennial session system, supplemented with the special session called by the governor, except for the brief period of existence of the Constitution of 1869, wherein annual sessions of the legislature were required.

ARGUMENTS For: 1. Economic and efficient state government requires minimum time lag between the date budget estimates are actually prepared and the passage of an appropriation bill. State agencies can prepare a more precise and practical budget which takes into consideration only those funding requirements for the succeeding fiscal year instead of incorporating the inadequate guesses of longer-range planning.

2. The actual business of state government has reached such proportions that adequate supervision can no longer be given to the affairs of state by one legislative session every two years. More frequent legislative sessions would insure more considered legislation on budgetary and other matters since fewer items would be considered at each individual session and the legislature as a whole would be more in tune with the progress and activities of state government.

3. Annual sessions continue to gain support; more and more states are abandoning the biennial session as inadequate to serve the legislative needs of a modern, progressive state.

Against: 1. The added regular session is uneconomical in itself in that the cost of the additional session represents a significant increase in the cost of state government.

2. An additional session is unnecessary because of the power of the governor to call a special session in the event that unforeseen circumstances require any new legislation prior to the succeeding regular session. On the basis of existing programs, adequate information is available for budgeting over a biennium. New or changed programs of sufficient importance can be provided for by special session.

3. The increased frequency of regular sessions would make service in the legislature a full-time job and even more economically unattractive than it is at the present time.

Lasi Rites Held For Mrs. Susik

Mrs. Aloisia Susik, 80, of Bay City and formerly of Cameron, died in a Bay City hospital Monday, July 28. She was born November 1, 1888 in Czechoslovakia and had lived in Bay City the past four years.

Rosary was recited at 8 p.m. Monday at Marek-Burns Funeral Home and funeral services were held at 10 a.m. Wednesday in St. Monica's Catholic Church, the Rev. John Geiser officiating. Burial was in the church cemetery.

Survivors are three sons, Frank Susik of Bay City, Martin Susik of Cameron, and Johnny Susik of Temple; two daughters, Mrs. Mary Mitchell of Bay City and Mrs. Matilda Horelica of San Antonio; a sister, Mrs. Vince Mayer of Cameron; eleven grandchildren and five great grandchildren.

Water Plan Nets Most Argument

The Texas Water Plan is large—admittedly the "largest and most complex in the world today"—but it isn't much larger than the flood of words that is being pumped out about it, threatening to inundate the voter.

In these last few days before the August 5 election defendants and opponents of the Plan, which would be implemented by passage of Amendment No. 2, have grown more active in their efforts to sway voters to accept or reject the amendment.

Even biblical commands are being quoted in one case to support the Water Plan. Rep. Bill Clayton of Springdale, whose district is made up of six Panhandle counties, addressed a "letter to the editor" in which he said:

"The Bible teaches that God created all things and his highest creation was man. To man he gave the charge to 'Be fruitful and replenish the earth, and subdue it. I hope we do not forget these commands."

Rep. Clayton is author of H.J.R. No. 9 proposed Amendment No. 2 on the Tuesday ballot.

A different question was raised by Pennsylvania Rep. George A. Goodling upon his return from a tour of agricultural West Texas, which would benefit most from the proposed Water Plan.

"The United States has surpluses everywhere, in every farm commodity," Goodling said. "And all I heard there was how to increase production."

"That's the thing that alarms me. They have the facilities to grow much more if they have the water. I kept asking what they propose to do with their product but they had no answers," he said.

A "Committee of 100" is opposing the proposed water plan as "being premature, wildly visionary, politically conceived, subject to vicious abuses and pressures, and lacking in the basic elements of benefit vs. cost."

Another group opposing the water plan bonds. "In a statement issued this week the group said that 'a state personal income tax is inevitable if the voters approve Amendment 2.'"

The interest alone on 3.5 billion dollars (cost of the Plan according to Water Development Board figures) at 7 per cent would be $100 a year per household, according to the statement.

A point of much confusion is the cost. The proposed amendment would raise the authorized amount of Texas Water Development Bonds by $3.5 billion and remove all limits from the amount of interest to be paid on the bonds.

The bonds would be secured by the general credit of the state. In other words, the taxpayers.

Advocates of the plan say the bonds and debt service would be repaid from proceeds of sale of water to users. However, general revenue funds would be required to meet bond obligations during the time between development of water supplies and sale of water.

Also under question is whether the average West Texas farmer will be able to afford to pay up to $30 for an acre foot of water — through irrigation increases the productivity per acre only $20.

Some opponents are milder in their statements, conceding the need for an overall water plan for Texas, but advocating more studies of every aspect of such a plan before submitting it to the voters.

Conservationists especially ask for more complete studies on the effects water control will have on the State's fish and wildlife.

The experience of other states, notably California, does show the importance of planning for a state's future water needs, as growth of industry, population, and agriculture makes ever-increasing demands on water supplies.

"There is simply not enough water within the borders of Texas," Howard B. Boswell, executive director of the Texas Water Development Board, said. "The State will pass from water surplus to water shortage in the 1990-2000 decade."

Crop Conditions Reflect Drouth

By J. D. Moore

The county grain sorghum harvest is in full swing with yields ranging from 1300 to 1600 pounds per acre on the "hot spots" up to 4,000 per acre on the better soils. The market for local grain sorghum is on the upward trend toward $2 per hundred weight and should continue strong.

The cotton plant is better adapted to drouth conditions than most plants due to the plant's root system. However, stress is noted in most of the cotton and this will be reflected by cuts in crop yields.

The cotton crop will ride out a drouth probably better than other crops or livestock. Open bolls should appear anytime now with cotton harvest getting underway the last half of August. It would take two to four inches of water to materially affect cotton yields now.

Betty Orr Wins 4-H Scholarship

Betty Margaret Orr, outstanding Milam County 4-H member, has been named winner of a Raymond Dickinson Foundation Award scholarship for 1969.

The state 4-H Club office announcement said the scholarship is one of several given by the Texas 4-H Youth Development Foundation to aid members in continuing their education. This scholarship is given in memory of Leon Kahaneck, a long time supporter of 4-H club work in Lavaca County and Texas.

Betty is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Orr; a May 1969 graduate of Rockdale High School and a veteran of 9 years in 4-H. Among her 4-H honors are the Gold Star Award and the Danforth "I Dare You" Award, plus a silver medal for clothing demonstration. Special Program For Peanuts Assures Quality For Consumer

The Department of Agriculture cooperates with peanut growers, shellers and manufacturers in carrying out a program to assure that only high quality peanuts are marketed for food. Peanuts not meeting quality standards are channeled into nonfood uses.

Of particular concern are those lots of peanuts which contain aflatoxin.

Aflatoxin is a toxic substance produced by a common mold (Aspergillus flavus). The mold is widespread. It grows and produces aflatoxin under warm, humid or moist conditions. Cracked hulls and loose shelled kernels in harvesting, by exposing the kernels, greatly increase the probability of mold contamination.

Each lot of peanuts will be examined, as a regular part of the inspection and grading, to see whether it shows A. Flavus mold. If it does, the sheller is prohibited under a USDA marketing agreement, from buying the lot and it will be placed under the CCC price support loan program at the regular loan value.

If space is not available for the peanuts the warehouseman should inform growers of the nearest market location where it can be received under the loan. Lots of peanuts showing A. Flavus mold are placed in "Segregation 3" for separate storage and are disposed of by crushing.

Shellers can buy only "Segregation 1" peanuts from producers. After milling for food use each lot of peanuts is tested for aflatoxin by a chemical process. Those found to be unsuitable for food are diverted to crushing. Finally, manufacturers take additional measures to assure that the product is aflatoxin free.

The peanut industry is working together to produce top quality, wholesome products for the consumer. Growers can help with the problem in two ways. First, be as careful as possible in handling your crop so as to prevent mold contamination. Second, if, despite your best efforts, a lot of your peanuts is found to show A. Flavus mold, then lend your support and cooperation in delivering the lot immediately for storage and handling under the CCC loan.

By cooperating in this effort growers will help maintain the confidence of the public in the wholesomeness of peanuts - and, thus, to the building of the market for their product.

Cameron In New Austin District Formed By Southwestern Bell

To better serve the growing metropolitan Austin area, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company has formed a new Austin north district.

The announcement was made by Bill Holman, division manager.

The new district will encompass the northern portion of metropolitan Austin, plus Taylor, Bastrop, Elgin, Smithville, Cameron and Rockdale. The central and south sections of Austin will become the Austin central district. Telephone operations here have been under a single district with headquarters in Austin since 1908.

Wayne Nanney returns to Austin as district manager for the newly created north district. Holman said. Nanney will be responsible for the district's commercial and business office operations. C. L. Carson is manager for Taylor, Bastrop, Cameron, Elgin, Rockdale and Smithville.

"We're pleased to make this announcement, because it indicates the tremendous growth in this region," Holman said. "The central district will have about 100,000 telephones and 50,000 accounts, while the new north district will serve some 87,000 phones and about 34,000 accounts."

Holman noted that the new district will be a material benefit from a service standpoint.

"This division of responsibilities will enable us to supervise all aspects of customer service more closely and more personally," he said. "And it will help us keep pace with the rapid growth rate here."

He added that the new district staff will be temporarily housed in leased quarters in Austin. The two Austin districts and the division headquarters will have about 1,500 employees.

Assessing The Plus And Minus . . .

News there will be a $3 billion budget surplus this fiscal year end is most heartening. It's the first such news at the federal level these past nine years.

Perhaps the surtax can be discarded as troops are withdrawn from Vietnam and the spectacular Apollo series is reduced in cost, but increased in effectiveness.

President Nixon seems to have committed the U.S. in Thailand on his current Asian swing for the eventuality of wider Viet Cong activity. Military spokesmen say the U.S. can withdraw more troops without hampering the military apparatus in the whole of South Vietnam. This apparently means the Vietnam troops replacing withdrawn American troops are capable of at least maintaining the status quo.

Coupling of a budget surplus with reduced Vietnam costs now upward to $30 billion a year, and declining space costs suggests that inflationary pressures on the dollar may subside in another six months or so.

If a surtax is avoidable, the taxpayer can look more benignly on increased efforts at containing metropolitan ills. That is, if the Viet con in life and expenditure materially decreases.

Despite the $24 billion price tag, the results of the moonwalk are astronomical in value to the President's effort for further abridgement of our Asian commitments. That is, if the Vietcong don't shift activities to or through Thailand and reinvolve Americans in numbers there.

Federal bookkeeping was changed a year or so ago and may be part of the reason the surplus arises. But the $3 billion edge is new to ledger years of red each June 30.

It is difficult to assess total implication of the space success. It is obvious the U.S. has regained in eight days a leadership role being atrophied by aging Vietnam involvement. It is such a lift that President Nixon coupled his personal welcome at Apollo 11's landing with the Asian swing. He will visit in Romania to make the leadership impression complete in the Communist heartland.

Russia softened its blackout of the moonwalk by showing filmstrips on national television there. Voice of America had penetrated for many Russians to hear. Only Red Chinese remain, as far as it is known, totally unaware of the U.S. moon touchdown. But, then, they concern themselves with the anniversary of Mao's now famous "record swim" down a river.

These things considered, the expense of the moonwalk may repay in advantages at the peace table, in the savings of billions in Vietnam, and in greater savings, the lives of tens of thousands of American lives.

It is a long list of plus and minus.

What Others Say . . .

Adjustments In Canada . . .

Canada is putting its allies' good faith to a difficult test by conducting all alone a major defense retrenchment. The rhetoric out of Ottawa is couched in the unexpectationable terms of national fulfillment and finding a middle power's appropriate role. But the reality seen by the allies is in the injurious terms of bugging out. Over vigorous Alliance protests, Canada is sharply and soon reducing its NATO forces; these now stand at 10,000 men and are considered among the best in Europe. Recently the Defense minister disclosed that over three years the armed forces would be pared from 98,000 men over - all to 80,000 - 85,000 - that is, a drop of up to 20 percent. The plan is to focus more on continental defense missions and to make special units ready at home for emergency and peacekeeping use abroad.

In one sense Canada is doing what many Americans would like to see their own country do: challenge the drift of postwar policy, review priorities, make a more systematic effort to adjust commitments to resources. At the same time, it cannot be defined that if the United States went about its foreign policy review as Canada is going about it - informing allies piecemeal and not coordinating policy with them - then the West would be in a very bad way. The United States has reasons as urgent as Canada's for reviewing its policies but its responsibilities deny it the flexibility which Canada is displaying now.

Preoccupied at home, Canadians at the moment are rather counting on their allies to understand eventually the correctness of the Canadian path. They could perhaps help the process of understanding by explaining their moves more forthrightly and by moving more promptly to do the things in foreign aid and peacekeeping which they define as the most positive aspect of their policy review.

DIPLOMATIC POUCH

WASHINGTON, D.C. The following letters were recently answered by the Department of State:

Cuba's Foreign Relations

I'd like to know whether Cuba has diplomatic relations with Russia. I'd also like to know which of the Latin American countries has diplomatic relations with Cuba and what the status of those relations is (embassies, missions, etc.). How many Communist countries have trade relations with Cuba?

C.S. St. Ann, Mo.

Dear C.S.:

Cuba does have a mutual defense treaty with Russia. Mexico is the only Latin American country which has diplomatic relations with Cuba, and there is a Mexican Embassy in Havana. Cuba has trade relations with all Communist countries and many non-Communist countries; Russia is its main trading partner.

Military Assistance
I am interested in the past and present policies of the United States regarding its grants-in-aid and sale of military weapons to allied nations.

J.L.P.
Annapolis, Md.

Dear J.L.P.:

Each decision in the Executive Branch on significant military assistance programs and transactions is the product of an inter-agency assessment of all the relevant considerations. The prime element in the decision is whether approval or disapproval of the proposal will advance the national interests of the United States.

To reach the decision, we weigh, among other things, any relevant treaty or alliance undertaking; the nature and intensity of the threat to the affected country; the ability (or inability) of the country to purchase and maintain the levels and types of military equipment under consideration; whether the transaction would tend to drain scarce resources (money and trained manpower) away from economic and social development; whether simpler less costly material would be better; the state of political and military relationships between the country and its neighbors; and whether such a transaction would initiate or increase the pace of an arms race in the area.

Colonization Project

It is stated that circa January, 1865, President Lincoln and Secretary of State Seward sent General Daniel E. Sickles to Central America to negotiate a treaty providing for the sending of our freed slaves to Colombia. If you can furnish me the full story of this matter, I would very much appreciate it.

H.C.S.
Worcester, Mass.

Dear H.C.S.:

In addition to information available in C. Taylor Parks' Columbia and the United States, 1765-1934, pp. 237-277, this subject is also treated in most biographies of Lincoln, such as J. G. Randall's Lincoln: The President: Springfield to Gettysburg, II, pp. 137-

141. The material cited in the footnotes of these secondary sources can lead to even more detailed accounts, if you want more information.

Official documents on the subject have been printed by the Department of State in Papers Relating to Foreign Affairs, 1862, under the heading "Chiriqui Improvement Company" (Chiriqui, located in present-day Panama, was then Colombian territory). Smith Sets September 1 F or Insurance Report

By Vern Sanford

AUSTIN

September 1 is the date suggested by Gov. Preston Smith for the special committee, now investigating auto insurance rates in Texas, to report its recommendations to the governor.

Former Gov. Price Daniel, chairman of the committee, has expressed doubt that the group will be able to make that deadline. But he says "we are going to try." Lots of insurance industry representatives showed up to listen, chat with reporters, and speculate as to just what was likely to come out of the committee's work.

Governor Smith, in his address to the committee, stressed that the investigation was not a "witch hunt" nor was it an attempt to "punish" the insurance industry. But he also said that unless increases in auto insurance rates were "absolutely essential," they should not be made—and if they were absolutely necessary, the people deserved to know why.

Capitol press rooms were deluged with memoranda and bulletins from various insurance associations, giving background information, stating positions and generally pledging support and assistance to the committee.

First meeting of the committee produced little information, except a show of determination by its seven members to find a way to lower auto insurance rates or to present a "concise and clear explanation" to Texas drivers as to why their rates are going up. And this will take a lot of explaining.

State Board of Insurance has agreed to a 30-day delay in its auto rate decision, usually made on August 1. Board has proposed a minimum rate hike of 11.4 percent. This increase would apply to drivers of private passenger cars. Individual rates would fluctuate in keeping with the accident experience record in each area.

EDUCATION
Coordinating Board of the Texas College and University System has increased the rate for loans to students from six to seven percent. This rate applies to all future loans granted under the Hinson-Hazelwood Act.

Board also approved a common calendar for all state supported colleges and universities. Such schools will begin classes the first week of September. Final examinations for the fall semester will end just prior to the Christmas holidays.

INTEGRATION
More than thirty school districts around the state are threatened with losing federal funds if federal desegregation guidelines, proposed by the Department of Health Education and Welfare, are not followed.

A Houston Federal Court may have found a way for the Houston School Board to get around losing funds because of integration problems. It has ordered the Houston School Board and the Educational Desegregation Technical Assistance Center at the University of Texas to work out the integration problems.

Bob Reynolds, project director, said no contract has yet been made and noted that this is the first time the federally-financed center has been ordered by a court to work with a local board.

Sundaco, the "only-on-Sunday" retail firm which leases other stores on a once a week basis, can stay in business until Attorney General Martin proves it is illegal.

State Supreme Court has turned down Sundaco's appeal of a lower court's refusal to say whether Sundaco is violating antitrust laws. And the Supreme Court endorsed the appellate court's decision not to issue an opinion on antitrust or Sunday Closing laws until the State Attorney General takes action.

Sundaco "buys" merchandise from certain stores every Saturday night, and "sells" it back to the owner every Sunday evening, thus circumventing the Sunday Closing law and allowing the merchandise to be sold seven days a week.

State Supreme Court also has reversed the decision of an appeals court in the George Rivera Santana case.

Santana was tried as a juvenile delinquent in a Texas Youth Council hearing and convicted.

An appeals court reversed that decision saying he should have been tried as an adult—in which case he might have gotten off. However, the Supreme Court reversed the appeal's court decision and said the trial court should decide if a trial or hearing was needed and upheld his conviction as a juvenile delinquent.

ATTORNEY GENERAL SPEAKS
Schools that participate in diet experiments with white rats do not come under laws requiring their projects to be checked with the State Anatomical Board, says Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin.

John C. White, Commissioner of Agriculture, requested the opinion to see if a bond had to be posted under the Anatomical Board rules and if the experiment could be considered as "cruelty to animals" as defined by law. Attorney Gen.

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editor:
"Now that we've got the moon, what are we going to do with it?" a neighbor asked me yesterday. I know this is a question a lot of people are asking but that's because they haven't put their minds to it.

Didn't they see those astronauts striding around up there? Take a step and go six feet instead of three before your foot comes down. Bound out of sight of the camera before you knew it.

Right off, anybody ought to be able to see that's the place to hold the 1972 Olympics. It's the sensational. Pole vault 50 feet, high-jump 20, while down here a earth athletes are straining themselves trying to see which one can be first to pole vault a measly 18 feet and high-jump 8. What's the record on earth for the shot put? Less than 72 feet. Up there I figure 200 feet would be a snap. Furthermore, no contest would ever be postponed on account of rain.

This is just a start. There are other uses for the moon. Think how easy it'd be to have a crop control program up there. Also, how could you have an air-pollution problem when you've got no air at all?

Furthermore, you won't catch any cities dumping their sewage into lakes and streams up there. Having to carry your oxygen in a back pack, think how few people would risk using up their supply singing with a rock-and-roll band. The hollering thus eliminated would justify a large portion of the moon costs.

Think the earth eventually will be paved over entirely with highways? The moon is paved already. People aren't taking a broad enough view of the moon business.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Refunds On Drug Purchases Await Consumer Claims

AUSTIN

Attorney General Crawford C. Martin today urged Texas consumers to check their records and file refund claims for broad spectrum antibiotics purchased during the years 1954 through 1966.

August 16, 1969, is the deadline for mailing a notarized claim to the Clerk, United States District Court, P. O. Box 745, Bronx, New York 10451.

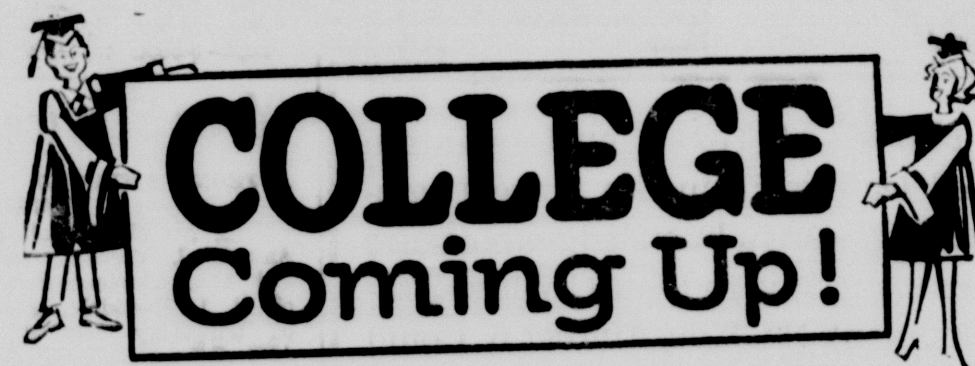

Texas consumers will receive a share of $109 million offered by five large drug manufacturers in settlement of multiple civil antitrust actions filed against them by Martin and the Attorneys General of other states.

Forms may be picked up at the County Clerk's office in each Texas county.

The drugs involved are Aureomycin, Terramycin, Achromycin, Mystecin, Panalba, Panmycin, Polycycline, Stelcin, Tetracycline and Tetrex.

If a person fails to file a claim, it will constitute authorization to use the money recovered in his behalf for the benefit of all consumers in a manner directed by the Federal Court.

"Thousands of Texans are eligible to make claims and I hope they will avail themselves of the opportunity," the Attorney General said. "The form is a simple one, providing for estimates of the total dollar amount a consumer purchased and the names and addresses of the drugstores where the purchases were made in the years 1954-66.

Bigger Truck Bill Opposed By Club

Texas Division AAA has joined with the American Automobile Association in voicing strong opposition to a bill now pending in Congress which would permit operation of larger and heavier trucks on highways.

"The present bill is almost identical with last year's measure which was swamped by an avalanche of public opinion and vigorous editorial criticism in the nation's press," Wm. M. Coffey, general manager commented. "The only difference is that a length limitation has been added—but this limit of 70 feet is higher than that allowed, except under special permit, in 48 of the 50 states. And history has shown that Federal maximums soon become state maximums."

"The heavier vehicles will prematurely pound to pieces the pavement of the highways in which we have invested so many billions of dollars," the AAA official said. "It will place dangerous over-stresses on many of the nation's bridges not built to sustain such heavy loads."

"There also is the matter of danger. Passing a passenger car on a two-lane highway is perilous enough; attempting to overtake and pass a 70-foot truck-train on anything less than a four-lane road will mean taking one's life in his hands."

Coffey urged all Texas motorists to write to their Congressmen promptly to express their views on the current big-truck bill, H. R. 11870.

Rogers Trustees Up Tax Valuation

Rogers school tax property valuations will be raised 17 percent for 1969 taxes, according to an announcement by the Rogers Board of Trustees.

The school tax rate will remain the same as the last few years, $1.82 per $100 valuation, but will be based on 42 percent of the value of the property instead of 25 percent.

Rising school operation costs, loss of federal revenue, increasing inflation and the teacher pay raise were cited as reasons for the increase. The local school district must provide about 20 percent of the cost of the Minimum Foundation School Program, the trustees said.

School officials said they have been hard pressed to make school budget ends meet and still operate a good system. A shortage of tax money resulted from the 92 percent collection of 1968 taxes. School budget is set on the basis of 96 percent collection.

District taxpayers will receive complete information shortly, trustees said.

Delay In Getting Education Check Can Be Avoided, Says VA Head

The Veterans Administration is as anxious as the veteran to have GI education checks arrive on time this fall, Jack Coker, manager of the VA Regional Office in Waco said today.

Judging from experience going back a quarter of a century through three GI Bills, the VA manager said the number of delays would be reduced drastically if veterans and schools did their part of the required paperwork—and did it on time.

If the veteran who was in college last semester followed instructions and returned his Certification of Attendance at the end of the last term, he has nothing more to do before his checks start arriving this fall, assuming the college registrar follows through and promptly returns the completed enrollment certifications to the VA, Coker said.

If the veteran did not return his Certification of Attendance, he should do so immediately to reduce the period of delay. If the certification is lost, the veteran should contact the VA office that issued it to him.

Veterans enrolling for the first time—or who have changed college or program—must be certain:

1. They have obtained a proper Certificate of Eligibility from the Veterans Administration.

2. They have submitted this Certificate to the college registrar.

3. The college registrar returned the completed certificate to the VA.

Normally, payment for September, and October is combined in the first check mailed to veterans in November.

P&W Commission Sets 1969 Seasons

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission in a regular meeting at Austin last week set the longest deer, turkey and dove seasons possible.

The traditional deer and turkey season in regulatory authority counties begins on the second Saturday of November which this year falls on Nov. 8—the earliest possible date in the month a second Saturday could fall. By the same token, next year's season will begin on Nov. 14—the latest date possible.

Dove hunters will get an additional hour of hunting daily because of the Daylight Savings Time. Last year dove hunters could start blasting away at 12 noon Central Standard Time or 1 p.m. Daylight Saving Time. This was eliminated from the Federal guidelines this year and in effect dove hunters can begin shooting an hour earlier.

Several standard changes were approved for all counties under regulatory authority. Of major importance was the postponement of setting this year's quail seasons and bag limits until the September Commission meet. Biologists said July 9 was too early to set the seasons when many factors could still influence this year's population.

The following was added to all regulatory districts: "A deer tag and evidence of sex shall remain on deer carcasses while on storage and shall remain with the carcass until reaching its final destination. Final destination shall be the permanent residence of the hunter or a commercial processing facility where the deer is finally processed. Antlers with tag attached shall be accepted as evidence of sex of a buck deer. A foreleg with an antlerless deer permit and hunting tag attached shall be accepted as evidence of a legal antlerless deer."

This does not prohibit a hunter from skinning out a deer in the field and defines evidence of sex. Below is a wrapup of the hunting seasons and bag limits as set by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission July 9, 1969:

Whitewing dove seasons will be Sept. 6-7 in Brewster, Brooks, Cameron, Culberson, Dimmit, El Paso, Hidalgo, Hudspeth, Jeff Davis, Jim Hogg, Kinney, La Salle, Maverick, Presidio, Starr, Terrell, Val Verde, Webb, Willacy and Zapata Counties along the Rio Grande.
